ILLIONS OF DOLLARS are invested in Gas-holders and the land on which they stand, in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. Such an investment in one arm of the Gas service alone, illustrates the importance of the Gas-holder to you.

These reservoirs insure a supply of gas, no matter what, or how sudden, your demands may be. An unforeseen dark hour during a day means the lighting of hundreds of thousands of burners, and the gas supply must be in readiness.

A proper distribution of gas would be impossible without the Gas-holder. Alert men are on duty day and night at "valve houses" regulating the city's supply and pressure. Only such a pressure is maintained as will provide for proper lighting, heating and cooking. At seventy-nine stations throughout Manhattan and the Bronx, gauges are located, constantly recording the equalized pressure, which insures your comfort and safeguards your interests. On account of the specific gravity of the gas, the holders must be built on the lowest level of land possible.
